

Give your waitlist something to hold.

Someone reaches out on their worst day, and the earliest you can see them is in three weeks. Fair Care was built for exactly that gap: practical, immediate support for the waiting period between reaching out and being seen.

FREE FOR EVERY PATIENT, TODAY

- Six Care Packs: panic, grief, anxiety, focus collapse, emotional regulation, decision overload
- Offline PDFs, no account, no sign-up wall
- Interactive panic tools: breathing pacer, grounding, distress scale
- Crisis resources one click from every page, never gated
- Privacy first: no ad trackers, personal moments never recorded

THE PRACTICE LICENSE ADDS

- Co-branded pack PDFs: your name and your crisis contacts on every page a patient holds
- Print-ready waiting room QR cards and handouts
- Premium Bundle access for active waitlist patients: guided audio, pattern tools
- A direct line into co-design: your patients shape what gets built

The pilot: three months, free, no strings.

Use everything with your patients for three months. If it helps, the practice license is $500 a year afterwards. If it does not, walk away, and your patients keep the free shelf forever either way.

AT INTAKE

One link in your waitlist confirmation email.
That is the whole integration.

IN THE WAITING ROOM

A QR card by the front desk. Support that starts before the first session.

BETWEEN SESSIONS

Homework that does not feel like homework:
packs matched to what came up.

The free shelf stays free for every patient, licensed practice or not; that is the point, not a promotion. A quarter of everything this project earns, after costs, goes to mental health charities, posted monthly in the public Open Ledger at infinitemcor.org/ledger. Fair Care is not a substitute for clinical care and never claims to be: it is what your patients hold while they wait for you.

See it, then talk to a human: infinitemfaircare.com/forclinics · contact@infinitemcor.org